Listgrove, a global recruitment group operating from Warwickshire, has seen success in leading key technical and management recruitment campaign for Bourbon Automotive Plastics who manufacture interior components for Jaguar Landrover, Toyota and Honda.

The project was part of Bourbon's continuing drive for improvement and business growth, with Listgrove appointing across quality, logistics and manufacturing functions to add to their 240 strong team. These appointments were needed to support significant investment in new decorative moulding technologies and to strengthen the company's leadership and technical capability. To continue Bourbon's quest for talent, the company is using Listgrove as its retained recruitment partner to identify outstanding candidates that can lead its Toolroom towards a world class tooling facility.

John Hamilton, General Manager of Bourbon's UK plant, highlighted that "Listgrove understood the calibre of person we were looking for and the experience required", an understanding cultivated by 40 years management recruitment experience in a marketplace which necessitates a bespoke service.

Listgrove utilises both UK and International operations, maintaining an active global reach over the plastics, packaging and chemical sectors across a diverse range of industries.
